

Who's the Dummy?

There's nothing more sickening than an accident involving your motor caravan. At the best your pride and joy – not to mention your own pride – is dented. At the very worst someone is injured, even killed.

So, it's particularly reassuring to know that Richard Holdsworth – always looking to the future – has done everything possible to minimise this risk of tragedy from front-end impact.

While most other converters say they've 'over engineered' their seats (which probably means they've done nothing at all) Richard Holdsworth has spent thousands on simulated crash tests for his Volkswagen face-forward seats and lap belts.

And he's delighted to report that they came through with flying colours.

So, next time you invest in a motor caravan – don't just invest in superb features, solid construction and beautiful furnishings (all of which a Holdsworth has) – but safety as well.

P.S. Don't forget Firetrace – the automatic fire extinguisher system – another vital aspect of your safety and available exclusively only on new Richard Holdsworth motor caravans.

*Another good idea from Holdsworth
and safe*